WEATHER SYNOPSIS
Cold air associated with a low pressure system moving across the Intermountain region yesterday brought daytime readings over the valleys of southern Idaho on the order of 20 degrees from the previous day and caused temperatures last night and today to remain on the cold side. This disturbance is now located over the Rocky Mountain region and is continuing to move eastward. However, a new, rather weak disturbance aloft is expected to move into the Intermountain region on Sunday afternoon or night. With a westerly to northwesterly flow of air expected to be reinforced over this region by the new disturbance, no general clearing trend is expected for the next day or two, but temperatures tonight to allow temperatures to lower in the 30s along with a threat of frost in the higher valleys of southern Idaho. High temperatures on Sunday will be slightly higher than those of today.

Burglars at Valley School Fail at Job

EDEEN-HAZELTON, Sept. 14—Burglars broke into the nearby Valley high school building early Saturday, picked up an acetylene torch and started cutting away at a safe that contained an estimated $800.

A sheriff's officer first reported the safe was opened and the money stolen. But Dr. Thomas Utterback, the school superintendent, said the school superintendent showed the safe was not pried all the way open and that the money was still there.

Apparently the burglars got broke into the school's agriculture building, stole the money and slipped into the main building through the kitchen, damaging several doors in the process.

The school is located between Eden and Hazelton and officers from both communities joined in the investigation.

School officials discovered the break-in at 8 a.m. and said it apparently happened sometime after midnight.

The damage is covered by insurance. Dr. Utterback said he said an insurance adjuster was coming to inspect damage to the safe.

Rich Boy
A school janitor was arrested shortly after the holdup of a branch postoffice Saturday and told police he had picked the postoffice because he figured the government could spare him.

"Well," he told officers, "I just feel like the government can spare me a little money better than anybody else."

Detective L. N. Bradley said Robinson admitted taking $100 from the postoffice.

Board Okays Annexation At Heyburn

HEYBURN, Sept. 14—The Heyburn village board approved annexation of one acre at the board meeting Wednesday night, board meeting chairman, reports.

He said 11 residents appeared to protest the action but after hearing the matter explained to the group they had been receiving benefits from the village but had not been contributing any payment for the same. The taxes would be $37 on each acre assessed valuation. Other benefits will include sewerage, street maintenance, large sewer connection as well as electric service.

Mr. Bruce Brower, village clerk, noted the village had spent about $10,000 for electrical service for the situation.

Mr. Brower, resident of addition, asked Hurst the purpose of the monthly $4 sewerage fee and was informed by Hurst, the village supplies 150 gallons of chlorine every three or four months for maintenance. The village has to be flushed out, and electricity for service and a large amount of interest is paid on sewer project.

NEW IMPRINTER that has been supplied to the state's busiest traffic courts is tried out by Twin Falls Police Judge Dale Adamson. The imprinter was supplied to speed up paper work of the traffic courts. According to Judge Adamson, it will just help the Boise office, which must handle all the traffic claims.

"Imprinters" Now Are Used By Busiest Traffic Courts

Imprinters, the main step in the peace and traffic courts, the inauguration of a system to speed-up paper-work by the state's justice of the peace and traffic courts, have been given to the Twin Falls police court and the Twin Falls justice of the peace office.

Police Judge Dale Adamson said the imprinter would not speed up the work of his office, but would just add another step. The value of the machine, according to Judge Adamson, is the positive and immediate identification it will provide the department of law enforcement in Boise.

George Denny, chief clerk of the department of law enforcement, said that the state's 50 busiest traffic courts have been supplied with the imprinter to allow mechanical transfer of driver's license information on conviction and violation records. The imprinter is similar to those used by service stations to imprint credit card invoices, he said.

Every moving traffic violation in the state must be filed with the department of law enforcement and filed against the violator's driver's license, Denny said.

"This entails a tremendous amount of paper work and the use of the imprinter will speed up the handling of violations at least one-third."

Denny said in due time virtually all the state's justices of the peace will be equipped with the imprinter.

Quintuplets Are Born in South Dakota

Fischer and his wife have five other children, ages 2 1/2 to 7. The family lives on a small farm outside the city where they keep a couple of cows.
Steve M. Andre, director of nursing at St. Luke's hospital, said the danger to the mother was of a hyaline membrane syndrome, a condition that sometimes develops in premature babies. This situation led to the death of President Kennedy's second son.
The Fischer babies arrived about two months premature. Dr. Fischer was brought to the hospital last Wednesday and "as soon as the likelihood of premature birth was known," he was called to the hospital.
About a half-hour after the doctor told her, she started crying and cried all night," said the doctor.
Dr. H. H. Fischer, said.
"It was shock."
Aberdeen, a city of some 23,000 people, is in western South Dakota. It is situated on the banks of the Missouri river. The Fischer family has a long history in the area. One of the Fischer family members was a member of the first group of pioneers who came to the area in 1880. The Fischer family has a long history in the area. Glenns Ferry Told to Start Sewage Plans

GLENN'S FERRY, Sept. 14 — Hadden O. Forno, of the state board of health, told the city of Glenn's Ferry it must take steps to construct adequate sewage disposal facilities.

Forno said the city has no choice in the matter on whether the facilities will be built. The department of health has the authority to come in and construct the facilities and assess the property owners if it is felt necessary and the local government takes no action to change the present situation. Forno said, however, he felt the health department would cooperate with the city in any plan it initiated.

He could not see the final date for the city to take action, but he stated that any act of good faith would be appreciated by the health department.

Sumner Johnson, of Johnson and Underkoff, consulting engineers, met with the Glenn's Ferry city council this week and provided them with the information on the steps necessary to go into the program.

He pointed out the federal government will pay 20 percent of the cost of construction, with the exception of the purchase of land for the lagoons.

He also advised the council that a loan is available from the federal government that will pay for the preliminary study on the local sewage needs and plans for disposal facilities that would meet existing conditions. The loan is interest free and does not have to be paid back until the disposal facilities are constructed.

With the approval of the council, Mayor Harry O. Bergstrom hired Johnson and Underkoff to make the preliminary study and application for the loan was authorized.

—The Elmore county sanitation engineer has informed the council the present jail facilities at Glenn's Ferry do not meet the health standards and that the toilet or shower facilities in the cell blocks.

Rotarun Ski Club to Buy J-Bar Lift

HAILEY, Sept. 14 — Plans are progressing for the installation of a J-Bar lift at the Rotarun ski area west of Hailey.

A "pilot program" to help raise the needed $15,000 to erect the lift will be launched next week, according to William Burk, member of the Rotarun Ski club.

The "thermometer" will be checked in a prominent place in Hailey to indicate the progress of the campaign, he said. The J-Bar will replace the rope tow now in operation.

The club has voted to offer season tickets this year priced at $7 for grade school students and $14 for high school students. Daily tickets will be raised 10 cents bringing grade school tickets to 35 cents and high school student tickets to 60 cents. The extra income will be used to help defray the cost of trophies.

Richard Stauber, Rotarun forest ranger at Ketchikan, Alaska, is a three-hour refresher course for members of the ski patrol. An eight-hour snow survival course also will be offered, with the instructor to be announced later.

An incorporation for the Rotarun Ski club have been executed and the club will sign a lease with Arkoon and Zidon. Plans of the land on which the ski run is located, soon.

Red Cross Bloodmobile Visit in T.F. Monday Will Be "Centennial" Event

Twin Falls residents who will there. He recruited and organized people from nearby towns to help the wounded. Afterward, Durant wrote down the story of the heroism and suffering at Solferino in a booklet called "A Memory of Solferino." This booklet aroused sympathy and the human flame of the conscience of the world. The fire reflects the suffering efforts of Red Cross.

The Red Cross was set up in September, 1863, during a meeting of 16 nations at Geneva, Switzerland.

About 100 years ago, on a battlefield in Italy, an idea was born. The idea was to create an organization of volunteers to help injured and prevent human suffering, wherever it might occur—in war or peace.

The man with the idea was Henri Dunant, a 31-year-old Swiss businessman, who happened to be on the battlefield of Solferino in June, 1859. He saw 40,000 dead or wounded soldiers.

Thus, the Red Cross was born. Then, Clara Barton pioneered the Red Cross idea in the United States during the Civil war. She became known as the "Angel of the Battlefield."

Monday Twin Falls residents

are urged to donate 200 pints of blood during the six hours the bloodmobile will be here. The reason for the increased goal is twofold: the area consistently draws more blood than the Boise regional center and it replaces, and, secondly, the increased effort would be a fitting observance of the 100th anniversary of the Red Cross organization.

For early donors, a light lunch will be served from noon to 2 p.m. in addition to the usual snacks and punch.

Some of the American Red Cross' milestones are, in 1883 the American Red Cross sent its first overseas relief, valued at $1,000, for Balkan war victims. valued at $247,800,000, for victims of World War I in Europe, began, and many others. As Twin Falls residents have celebrated the Idaho territorial centennial year this summer, agency.

$1,400 Damage Caused by Crash

Police reported $1,400 damages resulted from a four-car accident Friday night on West Main street.

Richard E. Branch, 16, was the driver of a 1958 Plymouth which was struck by a 1955 Chevrolet owned by Herbert McDonald. This car rammed a parked Dodge pickup owned by James A. Casler, and the truck struck a 1953 Chevrolet owned by Jack Benness, all Jerome.

Branch was attempting to turn his car from the right lane to the left lane of traffic when another driver hooked his horn, he told police. Branch said he was then able, losing control of his car, which then struck the parked car.

There was $300 damage to the Plymouth and a total of $1,000 damage to the three parked cars. The police still are investigating.

Stock Mart Battles Tide, Sets Record

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The stock market battled a tide of pessimism but managed to reach a new record high in fall trading this week.

The week opened with a fair amount of nervousness, attributed to the fact that the Dow Jones industrial average had broken through the 100-point mark for the first time since the crash of 1929.

However, the market trend was upward after the opening on Tuesday when the average closed at 101.12, a new record high.

Through the week, the volume was heavy, and the market was characterized by a steady upward movement, with the Dow Jones average closing at 101.12 on Friday.

The market was buoyed by a number of factors, including the fact that the Federal Reserve Bank had announced that it would keep the discount rate at 3 percent, and the fact that the Treasury Department had announced that it would issue a new series of government bonds.

The market was also helped by the fact that the economy was showing signs of recovery, with industrial production up 10 percent in August over the same month last year.

Cards Hold Mastery Over Dallas 34-7

DALLAS, Sept. 14 (AP)—Charley Johnson's passing, Bill Triplett's running, a 58-yard dash with an intercepted pass by Jimmy Hill and Dallas' mistakes gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 34-7 victory in an opening National Football league game tonight.

Jim Bakken also kicked field goals of 43 and 45 yards. Dallas continued frustrated. It never has been able to beat St. Louis although heavily favored to make it this time.

The Cowboys drew first blood, scoring a touchdown in the second quarter as Don Meredith threw for 40 yards in a 60-yard march, with the payoff a 15-yarder to Pella Norman.

But from there on Dallas had little chance with the hard-running Cardinals, guided by Johnson, who charged in with some crucial runs himself.

St. Louis jammed 20 points into the second period with Bakken's 45-yard field goal coming first after Johnson had sent the Cards 42 yards.

All Christians in Single Church Foreseen as Being Inevitable

By O. A. CUSUMAKER
 Times News Feature Editor
 One church with all Christians in it, that is the goal of the Christian church in the future. This is the goal of the Christian church in the future. This is the goal of the Christian church in the future. This is the goal of the Christian church in the future.

The Episcopal church, the Rev. Alexander Shields, pastor, was also present. Bishop Norman Foster, Boise, was scheduled to attend but could not attend. Other Western bishops in sending their travel money to an African bishop in order that he might attend in their place.

The world congress gathered 1,000 delegates from all parts of the globe and more than 17,000 were present at the opening session. Among the Anglican communions represented were the Church of England, the Episcopal church in Scotland, the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States of America and the Anglican Church of Canada.

In all there were more than 18 church groups represented. It was the third time such a world congress had been held. Theme included the church's mission to the world, the religious frontier, the political frontier, the cultural frontier and the frontiers of training for action and organizing for action.

At times, Larson said, the discussion became somewhat heated but generally the underlying current having to do with all religions joining together under one church, was prevalent.

"It might come as a shock to many people to learn that in this world the members of the Christian faith are in a vast minority," Larson said as he discussed his beliefs and those of the congress with this Times-News writer.

"Because of this it is important that we understand not only our own religion but also the religions of others."

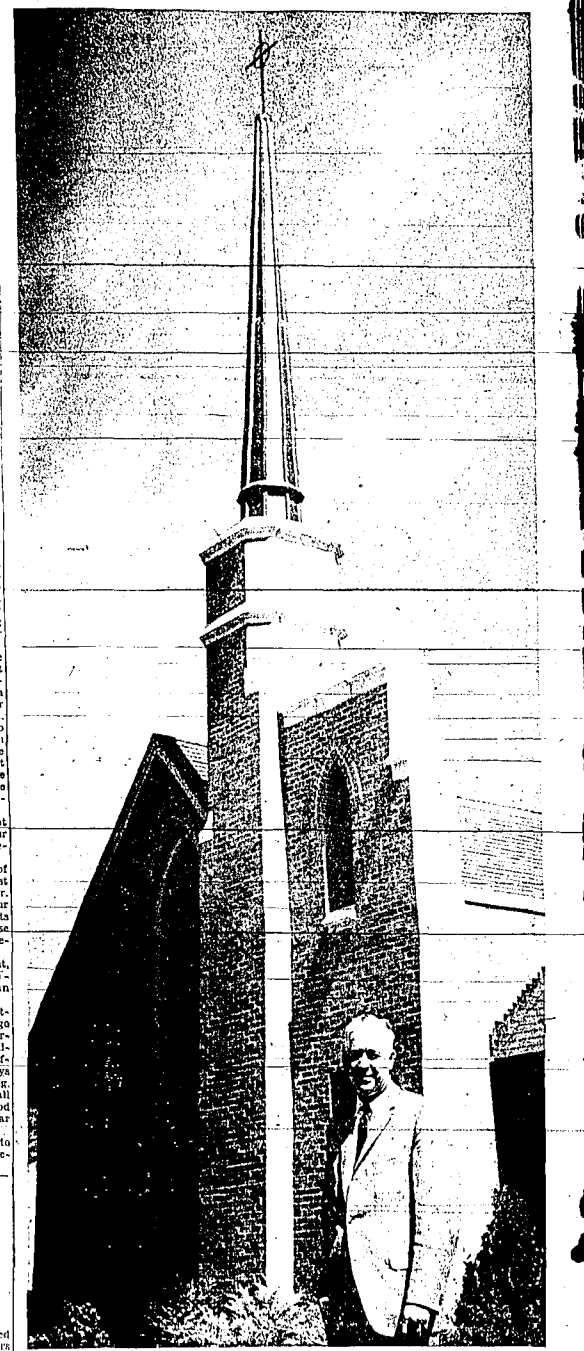

"To bring the message of Christ to all people, we must first get our own house in order. It is ridiculous to waste our energies and have our thoughts diverted from our true purpose to the differences that exist between us."

He was referring to the present, outstanding "differences" between the Anglicans, Roman Catholics and Protestants.

"Every church has certain rituals which the members go through during any church service," Larson continued. "Actually, though, it makes little difference whether a person prays kneeling or standing or sitting."

The real purpose, we must all realize, is the worship of God and not the various particular rituals."

Larson also took exception to individuals who express the belief that we understand not only our own religion but also the religions of others.

UNITED CHRISTIANS in one church is seen as a reality of the future by Rev. Larson, Twin Falls attorney and lay worker in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension. He was the four Idaho lay worker attending the Anglican congress in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. (Times-News photo)

Progress Is Made to End Cancer Fear

By DR. L. S. RAYDIN
 President, American Cancer Society

Last year Americans pushed more than 500 million dollars across the nation's parastatutory windows of fear.

But one of the biggest gambles of all was the 100 million dollars wagered on efforts to control cancer. At stake were the lives of approximately 10,000 Americans under treatment for cancer and the 40 million now alive who some day will have to face up to that fatal diagnosis.

"This year it has become obvious that 200,000 of our citizens will die of cancer," said Dr. Raydin.

About 177,000 people will, we believe, be cured. The most conspicuous gains are in the lives of young mothers and children who surely would have died of their diseases had it not been for advances in science and medicine.

Most heartening is the fact that the death rate in women with uterine cancer has been downward, due in large part to better diagnostic techniques. In men, cancer in general is falling, mostly due to the rapid increase in lung cancer.

We believe that cigarette smoking is a major factor in this cancer. Little by little, cancer, however, have been decreasing for some time.

Usually, the steel boxes are made any size to fit any specifications, such as different sizes required for various storage capacities. The greater the thickness, the boxes will hold more than one-third more grain than the same size wooden boxes.

Evolution of seed and grain storage has changed through the years. In pioneer days the grain mostly was "just stored," just, were manufactured. Steel boxes are like the wooden ones only a newer version.

With the boxes and fed into one man near the top of the stack, the grain is poured and seed at one time. Automation in the industry has replaced manpower.

Today, the local firm manufactures, for less than $100, steel boxes in 1957 on a trial basis. Officials of the company developed the idea among the farmers and the industry is successfully established. The demand, however, is easily adapted.

Then someone invented the common bag and grain was stored in this manner. Only catch was that it took a lot of manpower to carry the bags and stack them warehouse high. This was before the age of the machine had arrived.

Finally, wooden boxes which could be handled by special fork lifts mounted on the front of wheeled machines (small) tractive-

FISH AND GAME personnel, men on two ends, check unidentified pheasant hunting opening as part of intensified study to learn what effect, if any, limited hen harvests of the past several years have done to the brood stock. Continuing checks on the status of Idaho's hen pheasant population through winter sex ratio counts and breeding season census show that this legal harvest of hens has had no effect on population levels. (Fish and game photo)

Fish-Game Department Made Careful Studies Before Hens Became Targets

By JIM HUMBOLDT

Idaho Fish-Game Department BOISE, Sept. 14 — Since there is a longer season again this fall for hunting hen pheasants, a look at the record is in order. Limited hen harvesting began in Idaho for the first time in many years during the 1960 season in only a portion of the state.

Careful studies have been made each year since the hen became a legal target and the most interesting data collected to date are the total harvest figures on hens and cocks during the three years that limited hen hunting has been allowed. The figures are based on the annual statewide hunter questionnaire sent to a representative sample of Idaho hunters.

The gist of the matter is that the hen harvests remained very stable at a figure close to a half-million birds per year, while an estimated 124,000 hen pheasants have been taken by hunters.

The figures break down this way: In 1960, with hen hunting allowed in only a portion of the state, the harvest was 60,000 cocks and 25,000 hens, or about one hen for each 20 cocks.

In 1961, with additional counties opened to late-season hen hunting and additional cocks added, the harvest was 495,400 cocks and 29,000 hens, or about one hen for each 17 cocks.

In 1962, with all counties of the state included for seven to nine days of limited hen hunting late in the season, the hunter questionnaire reported 494,000 cocks and 29,000 hens, or one hen for each eight cocks bagged.

Edward Bizeau, state game bird supervisor, comments that continuing checks on the status of Idaho's hen pheasant population through winter sex ratio counts and breeding season census show that this legal harvest of hens has had no effect whatsoever on population levels.

This year, the fish and game commission has set the regular opening for pheasant hunting. These are Oct. 5 in northern Idaho and Oct. 26 in southern Idaho. If the state, beginning on the 10th day of these seasons, one hen pheasant will be permitted in the daily bag limit of pheasants. In other words, cocks will be the only legal targets the first nine days.

Oct. 14, the 10th day of the season in northern Idaho, is the start of the limited hen harvest, and Nov. 4 is the date for southern Idaho. The one-hen-in-the-daily-bag regulation will be in effect throughout the remainder of the pheasant hunting, according to Bizeau.

It is noteworthy, however, that all of southern Idaho does not have the same closing dates for pheasant hunting. The southwestern counties close the season at sunset on Dec. 8, while southwestern and southeastern parts of the state end the season on Nov. 24.

Bizeau bases the date for limited hen harvesting on the fact that the population increase of the pheasant is rapid. About two-thirds of the birds in the field in the middle of the summer are young. It is during the following spring to produce young, this loss occurs every year, regardless of whether they are hunted or not.

He cites California as a case in point. That state has allowed limited hen hunting in the northern counties from 1953 through 1957. Intensive studies were conducted before and after this period of hen shooting to establish its effect upon the pheasant population.

"These studies conclusively showed that the annual hen harvest of Idaho ever will be placed on a straight, efficient hunting basis, as now is the case with all other game birds in the state. The reason for this," he explains, "is that each unit of land has a definite water carrying capacity for pheasants, regardless of sex. Keeping the breeding sex ratio weighted in favor of hens provides the best opportunity for taking advantage of favorable nesting conditions and providing the largest crops of young birds."

This type of hunting regulation can be applied readily to the pheasant because of the striking difference in appearance between the sexes.

"Eventually 150,000 — 300,000 Idaho hen pheasants can be added to the annual cock harvest without adversely affecting the breeding potential," Bizeau asserts. "Progress toward that objective will be slow as the hunt data is analyzed year by year and the hen regulation gradually liberalized on the basis of sound information."

In other words, it is good business to add that much hunting and food to the present resource rather than donate it to hawks, weasels, highway traffic toll and other nonhunting mortality which annually occurs to pheasants.

The memory of the dictator, dead two years, was a major factor in the 1962 presidential election. His shadow today threatens the stability of this infant democracy.

Juan Bosch, a white-thatched attorney-professor was swept into office eight months ago by a crushing national vote of approval. Now his growing unpopularity is one of many disturbing signs here.

"The trouble here," says a foreign businessman, "is that everyone wants to govern, but after 21 years of tyranny nobody really knows how."

A lack of distinguishable national and international politics springs from widespread administrative incompetence. This has aroused the business and professional classes and some segments of labor, and caused to alienate the Roman Catholic church.

It is noteworthy, however, that all of southern Idaho does not have the same closing dates for pheasant hunting. The southwestern counties close the season at sunset on Dec. 8, while southwestern and southeastern parts of the state end the season on Nov. 24.

Bizeau bases the date for limited hen harvesting on the fact that the population increase of the pheasant is rapid. About two-thirds of the birds in the field in the middle of the summer are young. MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT

Oklahoman Visited Rupert in 1932, Stayed on to Become Town's Mayor

RUPT, Sept. 14 — When Mr. and Mrs. Glover Acock first visited Rupert in the early 1930's they had no intention of staying. Their first came West to visit some relatives and fully intended to return to their home town of Shawnee, Okla. After they had made Shawnee their home for the past 15 years and lived it.

But there was something about southern Idaho that appealed to them, said Acock. The area having adequate irrigation water for farm and faginated Acock, who had been a farmer in Shawnee. He had given up farming and was in the mercantile business. Business was good during the late '20's—the depression was still hanging on.

Besides, Acock's first love was for the land. He preferred to farm. Farming in Oklahoma depended, in those days, on the weather. Irrigation water on demand was appealing to him.

Little did Acock realize when he left Oklahoma that he would end up as mayor of Rupert. Glover Acock was born in Shawnee in 1893. He was strictly a homebody boy, having lived a good portion of his life there, and was educated in Shawnee schools.

On May 25, 1935, he married Nettie Siders and they decided they would continue to live and work in Oklahoma. Civic work and Acock were drawn together. His primary interest was in schools and he served on the Shawnee school board.

In 1932 Acock and his family moved to the Rupert area after a short visit to Idaho. Until 1948 he was content simply to farm the land and do what he could to help the community. He and his wife have been active in the Methodist church, working on many projects.

In 1948 he retired from farming and moved to town. At that time Acock was expected to take care of his flowers and keep his yard in good condition. However, he didn't get to rest for very long. A few of his friends and neighbors contacted him about running for the city council.

His political light was supposed to be a seat on the city council. He ended up running for mayor instead. Evidently, the people of Rupert like him, because he was elected by a two to one majority. For the past 12 years he has served as mayor of Rupert.

Meanwhile, the town has become active in the Rupert Lion club and was on several committees which made many improvements in Rupert's parks and playgrounds.

One of Acock's favorite pastimes is fishing. There is hardly a week that goes by in the summer when the mayor hasn't been out in the water somewhere in southern Idaho.

Another favorite pastime of the Acocks is traveling. The Acocks have three daughters, and they decided to stay in the town.

part on the city. After being a quiet little town for many years, Rupert began growing and the city limits were expanded. It used to be that most of the business was located around the square. Expansion now is extending beyond the square, and with growth came problems.

One of the hardest problems was the resulting of traffic through town. A cooperative effort between the city and the state department of highways has resulted in a four-lane highway to carry the traffic through the town.

Progress is largely the result of hard work by the people and the mayor's office is simply an instrument to boost growth. Acock has no intention of taking credit for accomplishments the town has achieved.

They are Mrs. Evelyn McCreedy, Quincy, Calif.; Mrs. Eleanor Killeen, Seattle, Wash.; and Mrs. Ma Mae Wredenhof, Blackfoot. There are 12 grandchildren.

Visiting the grandchildren and our own children is always pleasant," said Acock. The Acocks have revisited their hometown of Shawnee several times. During the first year in Idaho they seriously considered moving back. After all, potatoes were only 25 cents and beans sold for a dollar a sack.

But Shawnee wasn't Rupert, and they decided to stay. "I would never have believed them if they told me I would end up as mayor when I first came here," said Acock.

As an early pioneer Mrs. McMaster was natural the vanguard of many organizations. One of the more was the Winona club, founded in 1910. Mrs. McMaster explained that the name is an Indian word meaning a combination of "wives" and "daughters," sisters' made up the pioneer women to look "live."

Her husband bought the two lots on the corner of Shoshone street and Fourth avenue east and made them available for the First Methodist church.

Later she moved to the Wood River Convalescent home, where she died.

A son, Frank McMaster, now lives in Ketchikan.
